Take up something for Lent

Beginners with the Psalms

A Lent Course with Peter Sutton by Zoom 2.00 – 4.00pm Wednesdays 3rd and 10th March
Zoom link as above.

We sometimes hear people say of a song, an album or even a whole musical genre: 'it was the soundtrack to my life'. The rock musician Bono writing about the Psalms said that 'King David was the Elvis of the Old Testament' and in many ways he was, though David didn't write all of the psalms. Like the songs, the poetry and the prayers of generations that have followed them, psalms describe feelings and stories in ways that other forms of expression cannot. This Lent come and explore the Psalms and learn a little more of these great treasures.

Most people will have a phrase from the Psalms which resonates in a deeply personal way. It might just be 'The Lord is my Shepherd' or 'I lift up mine eyes unto the hills' - but there are countless others which hit the nail on the head to articulate our relationship with God. Thomas Merton said that the Psalms 'were written by men who knew who God was' – often created out of deep anguish or great joy. Come and explore whether you like them as prayers, songs, poems or just great literature. All are welcome.

Live | Pray | Serve

Latest details on our Live | Pray | Serve vision

This week Bishop Christopher will chair a series of meetings at which each deanery will present their ideas as to what mission and ministry could look like locally, as we discern together how we can grow in depth, impact and number. Petersfield Deanery will present its plan to the Bishop on Tuesday evening. After that, Archdeacons will work with each deanery to develop their plans, before Diocesan Synod members discuss how those proposals fit together into an overall diocesan framework. You can read more about the vision here, and see the full timetable as part of our frequently-asked questions here. You can watch the video in which Bishop Christopher outlines the vision here.
